NEW MEMBER MEETINGS
Are you a new member of UFCW Local 11677? Has one of your co-workers recently joined our union?
Get up to a $65 credit toward your initiation fee when you attend a New Member Training Meeting within six months of your hire date.
Call (909) 877-5000 for dates, locations and answers to any questions.

Notice to all members: Your dues are now payable!
If you are one of the few members of the local who are NOT YET signed up for dues checkoff: YOUR DUES ARE NOW DUE AND PAYABLE. IF YOUR DUES ARE NOT PAID ON OR BEFORE THE FIRST OF EVERY MONTH, YOU WILL AUTOMATICALLY SUSPEND YOURSELF.

With dues checkoff, all future dues can be deducted automatically from your pay check. If you do not have an authorization form, call the local and one will be sent to you immediately.
Nonpayment or payment of the incorrect amount will automatically suspend you — a costly and inconvenient mistake. Although not required, the local, as a courtesy, normally sends billing notices by first-class mail to those not on dues checkoff. It is the member’s obligation to pay dues in a timely manner. Not receiving a notice is not an excuse for failure to pay dues on time.

Avoid suspension. Authorize dues checkoff today!

President’s Report
RICK BRUER

The power of solidarity

Our union is proud of our members at Albertsons/Vons and Ralphs for standing strong to secure a great new contract with their employers.

Because of that combined strength, we were also able to come to a successful new agreement with Stater Bros.

The contracts were ratified by UFCW members at all seven Southern California locals on Aug. 8 and Sept. 8.

These agreements provide modest wage increases, retro pay, wage progression improvements, more advanced notice of work scheduling for employees, and funding to guarantee health and retirement security for our members.

We thank our members who showed their patience and unwavering support throughout these negotiations and participated in the voting process.

It wasn’t easy.

Bargaining with Albertsons/Vons and Ralphs began in earnest in March, when our previous contract expired. For nearly five months we fought to get the employers to hammer out a deal that was beneficial to both sides.

Focused on limiting their costs, the companies proposed capping their contributions to our health fund. This would have forced us to choose between sacrificing our coverage or increasing premiums paid by the members.

We also encountered resistance to strengthening the pension fund, putting the Golden Rule of 85 in danger. This rule allows a member to retire with full benefits when his or her age plus years of service totals 85.

Our members responded to the companies’ proposals, first by coming out in force to participate in actions in front of the stores and then on June 21 by voting overwhelmingly to authorize their union leaders to call a strike against Albertsons/Vons and Ralphs, should one become necessary to negotiate a fair contract.

Neither side in the negotiations wanted a strike, but sometimes such votes are necessary to demonstrate to the employers we deserve our wages, benefits and workplace standards. We all make the companies successful and we will not accept less than what we have gained in our contracts.

Providing critical support to our members at Albertsons, Ralphs and Vons were their union sisters and brothers at Stater Bros, Rite Aid, CVS and other employers. They participated in rallies, handbilling events and other actions.

Together, we showed the employers that the full force of Local 1167 was serious about maintaining our health and pension benefits. They saw our members in front of the stores, demonstrating their steadfast support for their union and asking for the public’s help in our fight for a fair contract.

Finally, the UFCW negotiating team drew a line in the sand. We scheduled one more vote in early August, asking our members to reject the employers’ current proposals and launch a strike.

That got the companies’ attention. As the vote loomed, the two sides got together for a productive 96 hours of nonstop bargaining.

The result was a contract we were proud to submit to the members.

Dave Rubalcaba is retired and misses working in the grocery industry. It’s all he’s ever known as a career.

Nevertheless, a $1.5-million settlement with Albertsons, achieved with assistance from UFCW Local 1167, will help him as he focuses on taking care of his family and giving back to his community.

“Even in retirement, the union still fought for me,” Rubalcaba said.

“Protection, that’s what the union is,” he added. “The union is family and a powerful voice — a voice that spoke up for me.”

Career beginnings

His career began in 1980 when his mother, who was friends with a produce manager at Albertsons, suggested her son could fill a job opening. He was 17 at the time and was eager to work.

He remembers meeting Joe Albertson, the founder of the grocery chain, a few days into the job.

“I was sweeping up a produce aisle and a man comes up to me and says I’m sweeping up a quarter,” Rubalcaba said.

“I was confused, so he picked up a potato that had fallen off the display and said ‘this is a quarter.’ He asked me to wash it off and put it back on display.”

He washed it off, and when Albertson returned he said, “Son, if you work hard, you’ll always have a job here.”

Rubalcaba took his advice to heart and became the type of employee any company would hope for: someone who didn’t get in trouble, was on-time and genuinely enjoyed his job.

He credits Albertsons and the union for giving him a fulfilling career that has enabled him to own a home, raise two daughters on his own and send them to college.

“Both of my daughters are engineers thanks to the union,” he said.

ReAnna, 34, is an engineer with the Air Force and Milissa, 30, is in college studying to become one.

“I never had to go to the union during my career,” he said. “But it is always there for us to speak on our behalf.”

He retired in 2013 and his lawsuit with Albertsons ended in June 2016, when the jury found the company “guilty of acting recklessly and inflicting emotional distress.” Rubalcaba was awarded $1.5 million.

Today, Rubalcaba’s days are filled with the joy of being with his 18-month-old granddaughter, Rose. He also volunteers at local hospitals and convalescent homes and gives nutrition advice to the elderly.

“I just want to give back to my community any way I can,” he said.
Contract Ratified!

New contracts ratified!

At meetings throughout the union’s jurisdiction on Aug. 8 and 9, members of UFCW Local 1167 joined their sisters and brothers at six other UFCW unions in ratifying a strong new labor agreement with Albertsons, Ralphs and Vons.

On Sept. 8, members from Stater Bros. who were in separate but simultaneous negotiations ratified their new agreement by an overwhelming majority.

The new three-year contracts cover more than 47,000 union members at hundreds of stores in Southern California, from Bakersfield to the Mexico border. The agreements include wage increases, retro pay, more advanced notice of work scheduling for employees, and protections of pension and health benefits, among other things.

The members voted to ratify the contracts after learning about their provisions from Local 1167 officials.

“We want to thank our members who showed their patience and unwavering support, and especially those who participated in the voting process,” President Rick Bruer said. “These agreements are another example of union solidarity in action.”
The power of solidarity ‘taking action’ — thank you!
When Roy Kilcher applied for a part-time job at Vons in 1977, he was looking for a job to pay for his college expenses. He didn’t think it would turn into a career.

“I was studying criminal justice and wanted to become a police officer,” Kilcher recalled. “I went in for my interview dressed in slacks and a nice shirt, and by the end of it I was handed an apron and started working.”

For two years, Kilcher worked as a box boy (now called a Courtesy Clerk) and later as a Food Clerk. In the meantime, he completed his bachelor’s degree and began applying for jobs in law enforcement, but without much luck.

“I’ve been legally blind in my left eye since I was 9,” Kilcher said. “No one would hire me with my disability.”

Down on his luck, Kilcher pondered his next career move.

“I was 20 years old and not really thinking about the future,” Kilcher said. “Vons offered me full-time hours and I took it as I waited for something else.”

He transferred to a store in Upland and met a box girl named Chrisann. They dated for two years and got married in 1981. By 1983, they had two sons, Kyle and Harley.

“When you’re young, you don’t necessarily think about your health and pension benefits,” Kilcher said. “But as I got older, I started taking notice.”

Kilcher was promoted to the dairy/deli department and eventually became a manager. He and his wife worked with four other friends who later got married and had kids of their own.

“I realized how great I had it,” Kilcher said. “I couldn’t imagine working anywhere else having the great benefits I got through the union.”

Active in the union

Kilcher and Chrisann are active union members. Chrisann left Vons to work in the Membership Department at Local 1167 and Kilcher became a steward seven years ago.

“During the strike and lockouts of 2003 and 2004, I was a picket captain,” Kilcher recalled.

He took on the strike role after a previous picket captain walked off the line. That experience taught Kilcher the value of leadership at the store level.

He began advising younger members to respect the value of their benefits and to take college courses so they can earn degrees.

“I tell younger members, ‘If you don’t think this job will become a career, go to school and try to find a career you like,’” he said.

Although it’s more difficult to turn Vons into a career these days, he doesn’t discourage members from giving it a chance.

The new Master Food contract, which was ratified on Aug. 8, maintains wage, health and pension benefits that make it possible for younger members to have a career in the grocery industry if they so choose.

“I’m so proud of the union for being aggressive and fighting for us,” Kilcher said. “I wasn’t expecting a raise, so that was nice, too.”

Kilcher plans to retire in two years when he turns 62. He’s glad his pension benefits will enable him to do so.

Looking toward retirement

In retirement, Kilcher hopes to continue spending time with his two grandkids, Jacob and Genevieve, and growing his Matchbox car collection.

“I have about 2,300 cars now,” he said. “I have all different types on display in my living room.”

His love of the miniature cars began at age 9 when he was in a hospital recovering from a procedure to repair his eye.

“I was building a treehouse with my cousins and a nail went through my eye,” he recalled. “I shared a room with another boy who needed a kidney transplant.

“One day, his parents brought us both Matchbox cars to play with and I’ve collected them ever since.”

A Comparison of Values: UFCW and Hillary Clinton

UFCW supports better wages.
The UFCW is fighting to improve wages in every state because we believe that all hard-working men and women have earned the right to better wages, better benefits and a better life.

So does Hillary Clinton.
UFCW members chose to endorse Hillary Clinton in January of 2016 because she fights for the issues that matter the most to hard-working families. Hillary Clinton believes that people who work hard should be fairly rewarded and considers stagnant wages to be the defining economic challenge of our time.

UFCW supports education.
The UFCW awards scholarships to members and their children. We are proud to help all members of our union family advance their education.

So does Hillary Clinton.
Hillary Clinton will expand apprenticeship programs and trade schools because she believes that a college degree shouldn’t be the only path to a good-paying job.

UFCW supports better health care.
When an unexpected illness or injury happens, getting better, not medical bills, should be the main focus. The UFCW is proud to negotiate contracts providing quality and affordable health care to members.

So does Hillary Clinton.
Hillary Clinton will help lower health care costs by reducing copays and capping what can be charged for prescription drugs.

UFCW supports equal pay.
Paying a woman less than a man who does the same job is just unfair. The UFCW negotiates contracts that guarantee equal pay and an equal say for every hard-working person.

So does Hillary Clinton.
Hillary Clinton is committed to ensuring that women receive equal pay for equal work.

UFCW supports paid family leave.
Nothing is more important than being able to take care of your family. The UFCW negotiates contracts that treat paid leave as a right rather than a perk because every worker should be able to bond with a newborn baby or help a loved one who is sick.

So does Hillary Clinton.
Hillary Clinton has a plan to guarantee up to 12 weeks of paid family and medical leave to care for a new child or a seriously ill family member.

UFCW supports retirement security.
People who work hard their entire lives have earned and deserve the right to retire. The UFCW is proud to negotiate contracts that ensure all members have economic stability in their golden years.

So does Hillary Clinton.
Hillary Clinton wants to ensure people can retire with dignity by increasing funding for Social Security and making Medicare available to more Americans.

“Eloise Reyes strongly supports the interests and aspirations of working people,” President Rick Bruer said.

The daughter of poor immigrants, Reyes worked as a teenager in the onion and grape fields surrounding her working class community in Colton. She persevered, getting good grades in high school and paying her own way through San Bernardino Valley College and the University of Southern California.

Eventually, she earned a law degree from Loyola Law School.

“After law school, instead of going to work for a corporate law firm, I decided to represent working families and injured workers,” Reyes said.

Her opponent, Cheryl Brown, is a different story. As an assemblywoman, Brown helped block Gov. Jerry Brown’s initiatives to cut air pollution in the Inland Empire, where working people and their children suffer the effects of some of the worst air quality in the United States.

But that’s not all. Brown has voted and blocked several legislative initiatives of the UFCW.

The Los Angeles Times reported that Brown helped block a 2013 bill that would charge a tax penalty to employers like Walmart that rely on Medi-Cal to pay for too much of their workers’ health costs. She also voted against a 2015 bill, now law, that requires grocery stores to wait 90 days before firing employees after ownership changes.

“Please join the leaders of your union and the Central Labor Council of Riverside-San Bernardino in voting to replace Cheryl Brown with our reliable friend and ally, Eloise Reyes,” President Bruer said.

Vote for Eloise Reyes in 47th Assembly District race

UFCW Local 1167 urges all members in the 47th Assembly District to support Eloise Reyes’ candidacy to replace incumbent Cheryl Brown. The district includes Rialto, Fontana, Colton, Grand Terrace, parts of San Bernardino and unincorporated parts of Bloomington and Muscoy.

CORRECT ADDRESS AND PHONE NUMBER A MUST!

You lose out if there is no correct address and telephone number on file for you. We know the problem: People move frequently. But it only takes a phone call, a minute with the Union Rep or a letter to our office. It could avoid a big problem with a hospital, medical claim or pension inquiry.
Tips for managing stress at work

With the elections approaching and the usual stresses of work and personal life, there’s plenty going around today to make even the most serene union member want to hide under the covers.

Stress can be brought on by changes in the work place, where new procedures, duties and personnel can cause workers to develop feelings of disorientation, insecurity and uncertainty. And when the holidays approach, the crowds and related tensions can add to the stress.

When dealing with stress, it is important to accept the fact that some things are not within your control. Trying to control things that are uncontrollable is a key cause of unhappiness.

Nevertheless, we can control how we behave, including our performance at work and what we say to co-workers, management and customers.

Think about your own situation and your own tendencies in stressful situations and choose which techniques you believe will help you the most.

Anxiety often has its roots in concerns about being unable to meet other people’s expectations. Take time every day to remind yourself that you are already a great person, no matter where you are in life, and then continue to work on being the best you can be.

If you feel you need to change, identify the areas where you can improve and start to work on those. You will soon find that taking care of all the “loose ends” will make you feel more confident and in control.

Once you can identify the cause of your feelings, you can begin to overcome your anxiety.

Welcome to Rosie’s Corner, a space dedicated to union women!

Women are now the majority in our local union, comprising 56 percent of our membership. In recognition, each issue of our magazine includes information about women’s issues on this dedicated page. Subjects include working moms, the wage gap, child care issues, women’s health and domestic violence, among other topics, as well as easy recipes and fun features.

Rosie’s Corner is a collaboration by women from different demographics.

Remember, this is our space and we encourage you to participate. Let us know if you have any topics you like to see discussed. Please contact us at rosies_corner@ufw1167.org.

The Nineteenth Amendment: A woman’s right to vote

Do you know what the 19th Amendment is? The 19th Amendment of the United States Constitution, ratified on Aug. 18, 1920, prohibits any citizen from being denied the right to vote based on sex.

It took activists called Suffragists 100 years to win a nationwide guarantee of women’s right to vote. All women today can thank the Suffragists for our right to vote.

They rallied at meetings and conventions. They printed periodicals that advocated for women’s rights. They gathered signatures. They built alliances with labor unions. And they picketed in front of the White House.

Their actions resulted in many arrests that brought more attention to the Suffragist movement.

There was a lot of anti-Suffrage sentiment. Opponents argued that woman were already influential in home and they did not need any additional power in society.

Fortunately, the anti-Suffragists lost the battle in 1920, and since then women have slowly but surely become a more powerful force in American politics.

This year’s general election will be on Tuesday, Nov. 8, and women in the work force have the potential to strongly influence its outcome.

In California, women now make up the majority of the population and registered voters. More than 9 million registered women will be able to vote in the election.

If you are not registered to vote, please contact our union office or your Union Representative. The last day to register to vote is Oct. 24.

Do it for yourself, do it for your country and do it for the Suffragists who struggled for so long to guarantee your right to vote!

Fact: A record 104 women currently serve in the United States Congress — 20 in the Senate and 84 in the House of Representatives. This is less than 20 percent of the total 535 members. We can do better!
Teachers criticize Walmart for back-to-school promotion

The Washington Teachers’ Union criticized Walmart’s recent back-to-school campaign, which encouraged customers to nominate public school teachers to win school supplies and a gift card.

WTUP President Elizabeth Davis noted that the Walmart-linked Walton Family Foundation is a major supporter of non-union charter schools, which divert funds from public schools and force many teachers to buy school supplies out of their own pockets.

“Public schools are funded on a per-pupil basis and if more students go to charter schools, then public school teachers will lose their jobs,” Davis said.

“Walmart is privatizing all sectors and we need to put a stop to it,” she added.

“Although it seemed like a nice gesture toward public school teachers, this promotion was an attempt to hide the fact that Walmart consistently undermines public schools and their teachers,” President Rick Bruer observed.

and pensions, the new contract secures wage increases for Thereafter Clerks, Food Clerks, GM Clerks and Meatcutters, who will receive 85-cent raises by 2018. Other workers will have opportunities to earn wage increases sooner, thanks to shorter progressions.

We also improved contract language on scheduling practices so members can better coordinate their personal and professional lives. Schedules for following weeks will now be posted on Mondays instead of Friday afternoons.

Negotiations are continuing for pharmacists at Albertsons, Ralphs and Vons. We are working to get adequate staffing, competitive wages and maintenance of medical and pension benefits. Our pharmacists work under tremendous pressure and we are doing what we can to help alleviate their stress.

How you can help

We have 18,000 members, and if every member would give just one hour a week of service to our union, what a difference we could make!

I know that volunteering to help fight for what is right could mean time away from your family, but it’s family that we are fighting for.

We all fight for our family collectively — our union family, too.

This is how our union wins strong contracts — by combining our strengths and raising our voices together!
